

ROAD RECORDS ASSOCIATION SCOTLAND

The Road Records Association held its annual A.G.M. recently and the question of disbanding was on the agenda. We agreed to again try and re-kindle the flame that was strong in times gone by. In those days most clubs were affiliated to the R.R.A.S. and members attacked Place to Place which was defined by main post office to main post office one way and sometimes back. Now in this ever changing landscapes it is no longer possible to do so. The Cycling Weekly ran an article on the 19th October about the R.R.A. in England having difficulty with their courses and were suggesting using circuits and other means to keep their side of the sport alive. Scotland started that in 2006 when Jim Cusick created a record for round Isle of Arran. The R.R.A.S. will be willing to agree to any rider who proposes to attack any circuit or place to place not necessary post office to post office. [town or village sign post would do or any other feature] your requirements would be to inform our secretary for approval then you would require a timekeeper, a car and a helper or two, also make sure you keep check on wind direction you don't want to fight into a head wind. For your troubles you possibly receive a lovely certificate. To view the R.R.A.S. handbook and records go into the S.V.T.T.A. website which also contains the S.V.T.T.A. place to place records so you could claim two records for the price of one. Please share this appeal with your club members.
